Zepto ExamMode

Launch Campaign — “Don't Break Your Flow”

---

1. Brand & Launch Idea

I am creating a launch campaign for Zepto introducing “Zepto ExamMode” — a dedicated 10-minute delivery collection of stationery, snacks, energy drinks, and instant food, timed to exam season (semester exams, JEE/NEET/competitive exam prep), so students never have to step out mid-study-session for a missing pen, highlighter, or 2am Maggi.

2. Target Audience

College and coaching-institute students aged 17–22, currently in exam prep mode (semesters, board repeats, competitive entrance exams), living in hostels/PGs or at home, who study late into the night and hate breaking concentration to run errands.

3. Audience Problem / Consumer Insight

> “I'm in the zone at 1am and realize I'm out of highlighters / my calculator's dead / I need something to eat — and the only options are walking to a shop that's probably shut, or losing 40 minutes of study momentum I'll never get back.”

Existing quick-commerce apps treat every order the same — there's nothing that recognizes “it's exam season, I'm stressed, and every minute outside my desk matters.”

4. Positioning Statement

For students during exam season, Zepto ExamMode is the 10-minute campus survival service that helps them stay in their study flow without ever having to step outside for stationery, snacks, or a caffeine fix.

5. Big Campaign Idea

“Don't Break Your Flow”

Every trip outside for a pen or a Red Bull is flow you don't get back. Zepto ExamMode keeps the flow unbroken.

6. Channel Plan

- Instagram Reels — Relatable exam-stress content, native to the audience
- Meme pages — Studygram/exam meme accounts for fast, cheap cultural reach
- Campus ambassadors — Hostel/PG-level word of mouth and on-ground credibility
- WhatsApp community — “Zepto ExamMode Squad” for deals, restock alerts, study-break nudges

- Performance ads — Geo-targeted Instagram/YouTube Shorts ads around college campuses during exam weeks

7. Creative Assets

Reel Script 1 — “3am Panic” (15s, POV style)

- 0–3s: Phone camera, messy desk, student staring at blank answer sheet. Text on screen: “3am. Pen just died.”
- 4–7s: Cut to them frantically checking every pen in a pouch. All dead. Sound: dramatic dun-dun-dun.
- 8–11s: Cut to Zepto app, ordering a pack of pens. Countdown timer overlay: 10:00 → 9:59...
- 12–15s: Delivery at the door. Student grabs pen, sits back down, keeps writing. Text: “Don't break your flow. #ZeptoExamMode”

Reel Script 2 — “The Highlighter Run”

- 0–4s: Split screen — Left: “Old way” — student putting on shoes, walking to shop, shop shut, walking to another shop. Sped up, chaotic, sad trombone.
- 5–8s: Right: “Zepto way” — student taps 3 buttons on app, keeps highlighting notes, doesn't even look up.
- 9–12s: Delivery person hands over highlighter through door, student says thanks without breaking eye contact from notes.
- 13–15s: Text overlay: “Same highlighter. Zero flow broken. Zepto ExamMode.”

LinkedIn Post

Exam season isn't just stressful for students — it's when small logistics quietly cost them their focus.

We looked at order data during past exam weeks and noticed a spike in last-minute stationery, energy drinks, and instant food orders between 11pm–3am. So we built Zepto ExamMode: a curated 10-minute collection of everything a student might need mid-study-session, with restock alerts and campus-specific curation.

Because sometimes the biggest support you can give someone chasing a goal is removing the 40-minute detour between them and their desk.

Influencer Brief

- Objective: Make “Zepto ExamMode” feel like an insider hack students discover, not an ad they're shown

- Content ask: A “study with me” or “what's in my exam-week Zepto cart” style video/reel — authentic desk setup, real order screenshot, genuine reaction to 10-min delivery
- Key message: “I don't leave my room during exam week anymore” / “this saved my 2am breakdown”
- Do: Show real study environment, keep it low-production, use the app on camera
- Don't: Sound scripted, oversell, use corporate language like “revolutionary” or “game-changing”
- Deliverable: 1 Reel + 1 Story series (3–4 frames) + usage rights for brand repost
- Hashtags: #ZeptoExamMode #DontBreakYourFlow

Bonus — Meme Concept

Format: Classic “expectation vs reality” template
Expectation: Student calmly walking to shop for snacks between study sessions
Reality: Student refreshing Zepto app every 30 seconds waiting for the 10-min timer, still in pajamas, hasn't left the room in 6 hours
Caption: “exam week me toh yehi flow hai ■■■ #ZeptoExamMode”
